

Abstract of Disclosure

An intraocular lens comprising a toric optic and one or more haptics, wherein the thickness of a region of the distal part of the, or each, haptic is greater than the rest of the haptic, such that rotation of the lens is inhibited in use.